People impacted by road trauma often experience common reactions.

If you were a driver, passenger, witness or assisted at the scene of a road crash it is normal to experience a range of upsetting thoughts, feelings and reactions. These may include:

Even if the road crash was some time ago, it is never too late to seek help

Thoughts

- Confusion
- Worrying about family and friends
- Constantly thinking about the event

- Fear of driving

- Easily distracted
- Forgetting things
- - Thoughts
- of harmingyourselfor others

Emotions

- Shock
- Disbelief
- Fear
- Sadness
- Grief
- Overwhelmed

- Anxiety

- Guilt
- Anger
- Shame
- Helplessness

Common behaviours

- Avoiding:
- driving
- reminders of the crash
- social activities

- Trouble functioning at work
 - Relationship difficulties
- Eating more or less than usual

Physical reactions

- Trembling
- Sweating
- Dizziness
- Crying

If symptoms are ongoing or worsen 4-6 weeks after the crash, it's best to seek professional support.

When to seek help

After a crash, people often find the most important things for recovery are time, understanding, and support from family and friends.

If you are experiencing ongoing or distressing symptoms which are interfering with your usual life, it's best to seek help from a professional. You can get help from your doctor, a psychologist, or counsellor experienced in grief, loss and trauma.

When you're ready to talk, we're here to listen

Road Trauma Support WA provides information, support and specialised counselling for Western Australians affected by a road crash - in person, by phone or video call.
